
Describe the time when you received your first cellphone

You should say:

When it was

Where you were

Who gave you the cellphone

What it was like

How you felt about it

The first time I received my first cellphone was about nine years ago, when I was a middle school student.

It was a boarding school. I wasn't able to leave the school until weekends. I remember it quite clearly, at that time, I received a package, which turned out to be a birthday present from my father. I opened the package slowly and cautiously, alas, it was a really cute mobile phone.

It was about the size of my hand. And it was pink, with only five buttons.

I was so cheerful when I received this cellphone. It was like having the most delicious chocolate in the world. With this phone, my school life became much livelier than before. Besides making and receiving phone calls, I can listen to music, watch TV programs. Of course, I also used it to look up study materials online. Most importantly, I could keep in touch with my parents. So it became an indispensable part of my life.

Why are many people addicted to apps?

Many apps have very eye-catching notifications that make the users open the apps regularly. Plus, people are very stressed out nowadays, they need to use some of the apps to entertain and relax, and if they don't have a good self-control, they become addicted.

People now have fewer chances to meet each other than before in this fast-paced era, so they rely on some of the phone apps, such as instant messengers to keep in touch. Some people form the habit of checking their apps every 2 or 3 minutes to see if there's a new message or something.

What are the advantages or disadvantages of using cellphones?

The advantage is that it allows us to keep in touch with friends and family. And one disadvantage I can think of is that overusing cellphones can negatively affect students' studies. Oh, and looking at cellphones when you are walking or driving on the road can be very dangerous.

其他观点

The advantage of using a cellphone, especially a smartphone, is that it allows us to learn about what's going on in the world wherever we go. However, the spams on cellphones also distract us from our work and study, which is an annoying disadvantage of it.

What do teenagers in your country use cellphones for?

Teenagers spend a lot of time on their cellphones. They can use it to look up information on the internet and stay in touch with friends who are not around. But some also play games on their phones, which is something that should be supervised.

其他观点

Besides making phone calls, teenagers use their cellphone both to study and to entertain themselves. They use it to look for information about school, listen to music, play video games and things.

Is it popular for children to use cellphones in your country?

Yes, it's very common for children to use cellphone in China. As people's living standards improve, cellphones have become affordable for most people, so they can keep in touch.

其他观点

Yes, it is. Many children have a cellphone, even some elementary school kids. They use it not only to make and receive phone calls, but also to play games and watch movies.

For children, what age do you think is suitable to allow them to use cellphones?

I think children should be allowed to have their own cellphone after they go to high school, because they generally have good self-control and self-discipline by this stage of life. Besides, they need a cellphone to keep in touch with people.

其他观点

Children can be allowed to use cellphone when they enter high school. They can look up information on their phone when they need, and they can relax a bit by using the phone to listen to music and stuff.
