

When do you listen to music?

While, actually, I listen to music whenever I can, I mean when I was taking the public transportation, when I was in the subway or in the bus to some remote places. I would really like to listen to those interesting music during the journey. It can really help me feel inner-peace and make me enjoy my life better. Whatever, I also like to listen to those light music as background when I was doing things, like helping my mum doing housework and even writing my diary. I really think it can make the whole process even more interesting.

How much time do you spend listening to music every day?

To be frankly, I never spend a single period of time listening to music. So, if I would say probably no more than half an hour. You know, I only put my head phone on when I am having meal to help me relax and enjoy my meal better. Because I heard that I would help digest my food when I was in good mood. I just have 3 meals a day, so it will be no more than 30 minutes.

What kinds of music do you like to listen to?

It could be hip-hop for the recent days. You know, I have been deeply influenced by a very famous TV show in China which was named as “the rap of China”. These talented singers from the show really arose my interest to this aspect of music, I mean, the hip-hop, the rap and things like that. So yeah, I do like them.

What's your favourite kind of music?

Actually, there is no such a favourite type of music for me, because my taste for music is diverse based on my emotions. Like when I am very sad, I probably go to listen to those no lyric songs as I mention before. I just want to pull myself out of something and just want to keep myself back to active. When I am very relaxed, I would choose some light music to keep myself in a very peace mood.

Have you ever been to a concert before?

No, I am always dreaming to a concert, but it is obvious that I cannot afford a concert ticket by myself now. It is far beyond my consumption ability and I think I will go to a concert someday in the future if I can earn enough money. And you know what, the small town where I used to live never have enough chance to have a concert and it is a pity.
