
Describe a happy experience you had before

You should say:

Where you were

When it happened

Who you were with

What you did

And explain why you felt happy

I was in my high school classroom.

It was one evening about a week before the college entrance examination.

The teacher was marking exam papers while we were reviewing notes from the day.

Suddenly, we had a power failure, the classroom was in the dark. Everyone stopped what they were doing and began to talk with one another. The teacher also joined the loud discussion. We took turns to talk about our dreams. I share what I wanted to study in university and what I wanted to be in the future and things like that. The teacher also shared with us his experience of being a student and what university life was like for him.

The discussion in the dark secretly removed all tension from us. I just enjoyed the talk and forget about pressure and worries for a while, which was so precious for a Chinese high school student.

What' s the relationship between money and happiness?

Even though money cannot buy happiness, it can buy us food and other daily necessities, which are the basis for a stable and happy life. We need to make money to support our family, but we should know that happiness isn' t all about money.

其他观点

Having a lot of money can allow us to have an abundant material life. However, if we have no family love, friends or even our own health, we cannot be happy even if we are rolling in money.

Why are children generally happier than adults?

Children' s life is much easier than adults, they don' t have many troubles and complicated relationships to deal with. They can be happy if they have toys and friends to play with.

其他观点

Adults have to deal with the pressure from life and work. Unlike children, adults don' t have much free time to do what they like or even to relax. So, they are not as happy as children.

Do you think money is important?

Yes, it' s important. Money can satisfy our basic material needs and pave the way for better education. Therefore, it' s essential for improving life quality.

其他观点

Yes, it is. Money can be used to improve our living standards. If we have enough money, we can even start our own business and help more people by doing charitable work.

Do most Chinese people think that money is important?

Yes, most people work very hard every day to make money. People need money to support the family and improve their life. Money can even change people' s fortune.

其他观点

Most people think money is important, especially when everything is getting more expensive. However, many people also think it' s enough if they can lead a simple and plain life.

What do you do to make yourself happy?

If you are talking about how to cheer myself up, then I chat with my friends and talk my troubles over with them. Sometimes, I go running. I feel much better after doing some sports.

其他观点

Traveling to a new place would make me feel happy because I get to experience something totally different, like trying new food. It really works.