

Describe an interesting job that you want to have in the future

You should say:

What it is

How you can find this job

What qualities it requires

And explain why it is an interesting job

It's basically a job for improving travelers experience on a range of travel packages for tour agencies. It's an emerging profession these days since the tourism industry is booming.

Usually, you can apply for it online as there are many positions like this on some major travel websites.

For this job, you first have to be familiar with the features of tourist industries around the world. For example, you need to know how much money a 10-day tour in Europe is going to cost. Secondly, you are supposed to have excellent writing skills, be able to take great photos and describe your travel experience clearly anytime. Finally, you should be able to get along well with different people and deal with all kinds of unexpected situations flexibly.

Although this can be very demanding for me, it is a very interesting job, because during the trip, we can meet new people make lots of friends, experience different cultures and try local cuisines. Most importantly, it's all free!

How would you define "an interesting job"?

For me, an interesting job should first of all meet my material needs. I mean the pay should be good. Apart from that, the job should be about something that I'm passionate about. For example, a musician is an interesting job for me because I love music.

其他观点

To me, an interesting job is one that allows me to grow and learn new things constantly, Which means it's not something repetitive. It should also give me a chance to find joy in what I do.

What should a good employer do?

A good employer should see the value in his employees and know how to make the best use of their values. On the other hand, he should provide an opportunity for the employees to grow and improve, which is a win-win for the company and the employees.

其他观点

A good employer should care about his employees' growth, say, he can offer training opportunities for them. Moreover, he should praise and award his employees when they do their job well. A good employer should be a good motivator.

Why do some people keep changing their jobs?

People change their jobs for various reasons. Maybe their pay packages don't meet their expectations, or what they do fails to give them a sense of achievement. So, they will look for something else.

其他观点

Some people keep changing their jobs because they think there's no room for further development in their positions, while some other people may change their jobs for better work conditions and better pay.

Is it hard to find an interesting job in China?

It's not too hard. There are millions of jobs out there for people to choose from, anything you can think of. As long as you try hard, it won't be very difficult for you to find something that you are truly interested in.

其他观点

It's kind of hard. I don't think there are too many jobs out there that can be defined as interesting. Many jobs are just ordinary. Besides, there's a lot of competition especially for jobs are generally considered more interesting than others.

What kinds of preparation should people do for a job interview?

Well, they should prepare a resume that fully displays their work experience and ability related to the job requirements Then they also need to be ready for some potential questions the interviewers might ask, for instance, they should at least write down a neat self-introduction.

其他观点

They should do a careful research about the details of the company, such as its name and its current situation in the specific industry. In addition, they should also be familiar with the job description and requirements of the position they are applying for, so that they will sound more professional in the job interview.
