Describe a website you like to visit

You should say
When you found it
What it is about
How often you visit it
And explain why you like this website

When I was a freshman in university, I found a language learning website accidentally, which is sharedtalk. It is a website specifically for language learners.

Subscribers can share their stories about how they improved their languages, in both text and audio format. Quite amazing, isn't it?

My major is English, and I am very outgoing. I like to talk to different people, so I visited this website almost every day.

The reason that I like this website is quite obvious. Frist of all, I can talk with foreigners without going abroad, which is quite a blessing for language learners like me. Secondly, I can teach others Chinese, and share Chinese culture with them from time to time so that they can understand China much better. Anyway, I feel really joyful every time I visit it.

What are the reasons why people use the internet?

There are different reasons. Some use it to study, like taking online courses or looking up information. Others may use it for communication. For instance, international students can video call their family and friends on the internet.

There are a variety of reasons. Some people go on the internet for fun, like listening to music, watching movies, or playing online games. Some other people go shopping online. Just to name a few.

What influence can (or, does) the internet have on children? And what about teenagers?

Although there are a lot of information on the internet which can benefit children, some violent information on the internet can exert a negative influence on children and even give them an incorrect view of the world. For teenagers, the abundant information on internet can open doors to a better understanding of the world, if they know how to tell right from wrong.

Some animations and movies, such as the Disney movies children watch on the internet can leave them a deep impression about their childhood. Teenagers can benefit from the internet if they have good self-control, but if they don't, they may also get addicted to online games and other stuff.

Some people say that different age groups have different tastes on internet content, what do you think?

I agree. For example, kids are more interested in comics and video games on the internet while adults are more into topics like real estate and business

其他观点

I think so. Teenagers, for instance, are interested in fashion and information about new gadgets, while old people may spend more time on websites about healthcare and current affairs.

Do you think parents should control what websites their children visit?

I think so. Children are too young to have the ability to tell right from wrong, so they are easily affected by some inappropriate websites. Therefore, their parents should set restrictions on these sites to create a safe cyber environment for them.

其他观点

Yes. I do. Children don't have the right judgement sometimes due to their immaturity, so their parents should select some helpful websites for them and keep them away from the so called "unhealthy" websites.

What (kinds of) people don't use the internet and what are the disadvantages that these people suffer because they don't use the internet?

Many people who live in remote mountainous areas don't use the internet because they don't have the access to it. They therefore can't be informed of the latest information in time.

其他观点

Sadly, people in some poor regions don't have the chance to use the internet. Some old people are not willing to use the internet because they think computers and smartphones are beyond their capabilities. As a consequence, they can't use the internet to learn new things and skills.
